

Members of staff and SU management, as well as different role-players who have been involved in the conceptualisation and implementation of this multi-year project, attended this occasion.

During the inauguration of Room 1031, the Dean, Professor Nicola Smit, noted that: "Many of you will recall how this room once displayed portraits of former chief justices, predominantly reflecting a singular demographic. In the wake of transformative movements such as Rhodes Must Fall and Fees Must Fall, we recognised the need to reimagine our spaces - not as relics of the past, but as environments that reflect diversity, inclusivity, and the dynamic nature of our world and community."

This particular "storyboard" project, involves moving beyond traditional depictions, such as presiding officers, shifting the focus towards narratives that highlight pivotal legal cases and the people profoundly impacted by them. The theme of this first room is "Contractual and labour disputes - fairness, dignity, equality, freedom and social justice".

The Dean recalled that "Iblack in 2018, and again in March 2022, the Law Faculty reached out to students and staff to suggest appropriate cases to be shown on the storyboards ... It was quite challenging to imagine how to achieve this as we are not designers or artists but lawyers! The Transformation Committee was then given the task of taking this idea further ... The timeline of this initiative underscores the collaborative effort required - spanning public participation, inter-departmental cooperation, and dedicated resources." She concluded by stating that the Faculty's commitment to being forward-thinking, their embrace of visual redress initiatives, and their courage to imagine something new within the beautiful Old Main Building truly creates a community to be proud of.

As the Faculty's staff and students now embark on the next steps in its overarching visual redress project (Rooms 1017 and 2034), it looks forward to continuing to imagine, create, and nurture spaces that reflect who we are and who we aspire to be.

Upholding these values has positive benefits for our personal, organisational, and social relationships; neglecting or violating them has the opposite effect."

As part of the practical application of the theory, staff were challenged to compete in an enjoyable round of Jenga.

Training Programme for the Office of the Public Protector

At the end of May, a training programme for the Office of the Public Protector of South Africa, focusing on public procurement law, was launched. The programme was facilitated by Professor Geo Quinot and Professor Sope Williams and supported by Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ). This week-long intensive training course will be offered in all regions of the country to build the PPSA's capacity in investigating public procurement.

Association for Law, Property & Society (ALPS) 2025 Conference

In the last week of May, Professor Zsa-Zsa Boggenpoel and Dr Tanveer Jeewa attended the 2025 Annual Association for Law, Property & Society (ALPS) Conference hosted by the University of Sydney. ALPS is an open international organisation of scholars and teachers engaged in a wide range of interdisciplinary research covering all aspects of property law, policy, and theory, and the role property plays in social structures, human relationships, and ecology.

Professor Boggenpoel presented an article, entitled "Unpacking the notion of 'suitable alternative accommodation': What do we mean with this notion and how is it applied in South African law?", which elaborated on her most recent research on the "safe spaces" in Cape Town - shelters designed to accommodate homeless people in the area. Her presentation focused on whether these facilities constitute suitable alternative accommodation for evictees, and what this choice of shelter means for eviction jurisprudence on a national scale. The Conference was an invaluable opportunity to obtain feedback on comparative jurisdictions and their approaches to alleviating homelessness, even temporarily.

Dr Jeewa presented her co-authored article with Prof Boggenpoel, entitled "Neighbour law or apartheid's echo? Unlawful occupation and the misuse of public nuisance doctrine". The article explored the persistent misapplication of public nuisance doctrine in cases of unlawful occupation and the racialised harm this perpetuates in post-apartheid South Africa and beyond. The presentation sparked rich discussions and critical reflections on the wider role of property law in society.

These engagements reaffirmed the value of international scholarly exchange - not only in sharpening legal inquiry, but in building a more inclusive academic community invested in justice, reflection, and meaningful reform.

Colleagues Abroad

Ms Parker visits the University of Groningen

Ms Rukshana Parker, a lecturer in the Department of Private Law, recently spent three weeks at the University of Groningen in the Netherlands conducting research for her doctorate. Her study examines the effect of religious polygamous marriages and domestic partnerships on the intestate inheritance rights of descendants.

During her time in Groningen, she was based at the Notarial Institute, which is internationally recognised for its expertise in succession law. She engaged with scholars in the field, attended lectures, and presented her research to faculty members. The visit also enabled valuable conversations with academics whose research intersects with hers, opening the door to potential future collaborations.

The comparative aspect of her doctoral research draws on Dutch inheritance law; thus, the visit to Groningen provided excellent access to legal materials, institutional insight, and scholarly expertise. She describes the atmosphere at the university as welcoming and intellectually generous, with informal moments - including faculty dinners and everyday office chats - often sparking stimulating academic discussion. The experience has not only enriched her research but also reaffirmed the importance of global academic exchange and collegial engagement.

Farewell Afskeidsgroet

Dr Debbie Horsten

"Dr Debbie Horsten joined the Faculty of Law in 2013 and taught various modules, including the Law of Persons, Family Law, and Advanced Family Law, within the Department of Private Law until her departure in March of this year.

Debbie is known for her unmatched wit, keen sense of justice, and warmth - always placing the needs of others before her own. She embodied family law and law of persons as she brought an exceptional relatability to these subjects, making abstract concepts come alive. (I have been known to conclude dubious contracts of sale in various tutorials...) She constantly reminded students to think of the people impacted by legal norms and rules and to move beyond thinking of law as a cold mechanism applied in a vacuum.

Debbie's excellence as a lecturer was recognised on several occasions when she was nominated by students as their most impactful lecturer. Her patience and care for others, in particular the most vulnerable in society, and students, are significant qualities that many value in Debbie as a lecturer and a person.

This care also extends to her love for her animal companions.

She possesses the ability to see potential in others that they may not yet recognise in themselves. Over the years, Debbie has inspired, nurtured, mentored, and guided countless students, who are all immensely grateful for her role in their lives. This includes me as Debbie has guided me during some of the most important decisions of my career.

Debbie, we wish you all the very best with your journey and I hope you still regularly dazzle us with your presence. In your case, all that glitters is gold."

Professor Delano Cole van der Linde

First-year welcoming programme

During the Law Faculty's Welcoming Programme, the new first-year group of 2025, along with their parents and guardians, met the Dean and selected staff in the Endler Hall of the Conservatory, on Tuesday, 28 January. Wednesday marked yet another full day of activities across from the Old Main Building, where the students officially began their journey in preparation for the academic year ahead. The programme, featuring guest lectures from some of the staff, focused on giving students the invaluable opportunity to connect with one another. A particular highlight was the annual first-year law student welcoming luncheon, generously sponsored by Werksmans Attorneys, held in the spacious Simonsberg Residence, which comfortably accommodated the approximate 250 students in attendance.

The rest of the programme, spanning the latter half of the week and continuing until the following Wednesday, featured a series of informative sessions. These covered topics such as the anticipated differences between school and university; the academic calendar of the year ahead; the weekday of the 'ideal law student'; consequences of misbehaviour as a student (and the possible impact of this on future career options); ethical requirements to be admitted as a legal practitioner; as well as the various support services that are available on campus, which also included programme-specific information sessions, targeting the various law programme articulations.

The JV/S and various societies active within the Faculty, which included the Moot Society, Students for Law and Social Justice, the Black Lawyers Association, Stellenbosch Chapter, and the Student Court, were also present. On Wednesday, 5 February, after meeting their respective first-year lecturers, the Dean wished them well with the start of the academic year - thereby bringing to a close the 2025 iteration of the Welcoming Programme.

Faculty of Law Pledge Ceremony 2025

The annual Pledge Ceremony was held on the final day of the first semester, 16 May. To help celebrate this special occasion, the Judge-President of the Cape High Court, JP Mabindla-Boqwana, and her colleague Judge Nuku, were in attendance.

Prior to the Pledge Ceremony, the Judge-President addressed the first-year group in their final Legal Skills 114 lecture, and spoke to them about the critical importance of the rule of law in South Africa; the meaningful role that law students will play as future graduates; and a day in the life of a judicial officer against the backdrop of transformation imperatives within all facets of the profession. Hereafter, Judges Mabindla-Boqwana and Nuku engaged with our students in answering their questions, before crossing the road to the Old Main Building, to commence with the Pledge Ceremony.

After a welcoming and address by our Acting Dean, Professor Juanita Pienaar, the group was addressed by the current Chair of the JV/S, Ms Alexia Cawood, and former Chair, now colleague, Ms Lerato Melato on what lies ahead in their journey as future jurists. In her address, Ms Cawood remarked:

"I remember my own pledge ceremony vividly - right here in the courtyard of the Ou Hoofgebou. We were masked, uncertain, and just beginning to grasp what it meant to step into the world of law. That night felt like the start of something much bigger than myself. It was the moment I decided not just what kind of law student I wanted to be, but what kind of person I wanted to become.

Tonight is not simply ceremonial. It is meaningful. You are not just signing a document - you are making a commitment. A commitment to uphold the values of integrity, fairness, and discipline. A decision to hold yourself to a higher standard, even when it is difficult. Especially when it is difficult.

In this field, you will often face a choice: to take the easier path, or to take the right one. The right path may require you to say no - to friends, to comfort, to shortcuts. But that same path builds the kind of character that defines what it means to be fit and proper.

Law is exciting, but it is also deeply serious. It shapes the lives of people - especially the vulnerable, the unheard, and the unseen. Your words, your research, your arguments - they matter. They will carry weight in the lives of others, sometimes in ways you may never fully realise.

As you move forward from your final Legal Skills lecture today, take with you not just the tools of reading and writing the law, but the responsibility of being the law in action. The Preamble of our Constitution begins with the words: 'We, the people of South Africa...' This is not just a phrase. It is a call. The healing, the justice, the transformation of this country - it begins with us. With you.

Use your years ahead to become the kind of person you wish you had when you were younger. Let your studies be more than a pursuit of marks - let them shape your character. Grow from every case you read, every debate you have, every mistake you make. And when you're faced with a choice to compromise your values, remember this night. Choose the harder path. Choose the path that builds a more accountable, more just South Africa.

Congratulations on making it this far. Tonight, we send you forward - not just as students, but as future custodians of justice."

Thereafter, Dr Greenhalgh read out the wording of the Preamble of the Constitution, before the students proceeded to sign their Pledge Document, which they handed over to the Acting Dean and Judges Mabindla-Boqwana and Nuku and, in return, they received personalised copies of the Faculty's Code of Conduct and the Constitution.

Renewed Postgraduate Diploma in Tax Law

In February, the Faculty welcomed students to its first intake of the renewed Postgraduate Diploma in Tax Law. This part-time, in-person programme is offered over a two-year period, at the Stellenbosch campus, with classes and assessments taking place on several Saturday mornings. The diploma is a unique qualification for individuals with a legal or accounting background, and requires a law, accounting or commerce undergraduate degree for admission. The 120-credit programme at NQF level 8 comprises four modules: Foundations of Tax Law (with emphasis on tax administration), Principles of Income Tax Law, Law of Selected Taxes (including donations tax, estate duty, value-added tax and transfer duty), and International & Further Tax Law (including the legal aspects relating to the taxation of companies, dividends and trusts, as well as anti-avoidance). The four modules introduce students to South African tax law principles, offering a comprehensive understanding of the legal framework governing taxation in South Africa. Emphasising the practical application of these principles, the modules enable students to analyse factual scenarios, identify pertinent legal issues, develop solutions, and provide advice. Professor Izelle du Plessis, Dr Enelia Jansen van Rensburg, and Ms Silke de Lange are the lecturers in the diploma. The next intake will be in January 2027.

The future of a prohibition on indirect unfair discrimination as part of South African anti-discrimination employment law: A comparative reflection

Equality in employment is promoted through a combination of a prohibition on direct and indirect unfair discrimination, and the implementation of affirmative action. Among these mechanisms, the prohibition on indirect discrimination holds significant potential as a transformative tool, departing from the premise that equal treatment may have unequal outcomes. This study analyses this transformative potential, as well as the reasons why indirect discrimination has enjoyed scant attention in South African workplaces, especially compared with the United States, United Kingdom and Canada. The research affirms the need for a continued role for the concept and makes proposals for its efficient dissemination.

A critical examination of performers' rights to remuneration as an effective protective mechanism for commercial musicians in South Africa

The plight of South African commercial musicians has been observed for decades, with the relationship between musicians and record companies playing a central role. In this regard, the role of performers' rights under the Performers' Protection Act 11 of 1967 is often overlooked. This study examines how performers' rights to remuneration can help improve musicians' financial outcomes. It calls for stronger protection of performers' rights, along with more robust regulation of collective management organisations entrusted to administer such rights, to ensure fair and equitable remuneration for musicians from the commercial exploitation of their music.

Using the master's tool to secure the occupiers' house: Expropriation as appropriate and effective relief in cases of mass unlawful occupation

South Africa's housing crisis has led to mass unlawful land occupations, reinforcing apartheid-era spatial inequalities. This study canvasses a definition for mass unlawful occupation, expands on a critical transformative property theory, and proposes an innovative remedial framework. Existing legal remedies fail to balance landowners' rights with occupiers' protection from eviction. The research advocates for statutory expropriation as a viable solution. By amending section 9(3) of the National Housing Act, the state can acquire occupied land, ensure secure tenure for occupiers, and address landowners' concerns – offering a principled, practical response to this urgent issue.

Social Justice at the Commission for Conciliation, Mediation and Arbitration (CCMA) and the Critical Role of the Commissioner

This study provides exploratory insight into the social justice mandate of the Commission for Conciliation, Mediation and Arbitration (CCMA) and its most critical functionary, the Commissioner. The main objective is to transform the pursuit of social justice from an elusive endeavour to a more tangible, realistic one. The research offers a way of thinking about and applying social justice by engaging the interwoven power asymmetries and bias in labour relations, presenting a transformative lens that integrates ubuntu. The study advocates for the empowerment of CCMA Commissioners to take up their role as social justice agents and disrupt workplace inequality.

Framed and caged: Theorising the vulnerability of animal bodies before the law

Despite laudable aims, animal advocacy efforts remain ineffective at realising a widespread transformation of human-animal relations. One significant challenge is the law's failure to confront its own complicity in enabling and maintaining the ongoing subjugation of animals. In the pursuit of animal liberation, this study offers a sympathetic critique of animal law. To this end, it reads critical legal theory together with the emerging posthumanities to think through the entanglement of bodiment, animality and law. Ultimately, the study offers a post-disciplinary articulation of a renewed juridical imaginary with which to pursue the future emancipatory and post-anthropocentric development of animal law.

Integrating environmental considerations in socioeconomic rights adjudication: The role of ecologically sustainable development

The intersecting threats that the ecological crisis poses to human rights require a recognition of the interdependence between socioeconomic and environmental rights. Of particular importance is the responsiveness of socioeconomic rights adjudication to the convergence of socioeconomic and environmental disadvantage. This study explores how the concept of sustainable development in section 24(b)(iii) of the Constitution should serve as a bridge to operationalise the interdependence between socioeconomic and environmental rights. It makes recommendations on how environmental considerations could be integrated in all stages of socioeconomic rights adjudication, including interpreting the normative content of rights and broadening the reasonableness standard of review.

First-year Prestige Bursary

In 2024, the SU Law Trust approved the awarding of two prestige bursaries to incoming first-year students, initially set at R200 000 per student per annum for the duration of their law studies, to further reinforce our excellent and diverse student body. The Faculty is pleased to announce the first recipients of this bursary. Congratulations to Miss Mills and Miss Bassios.

2024 Top Academic Achiever Prize Announcement

2024 Top Akademiese Presteerder-Prys Aankondiging

The alumni of the Faculty annually fund various bursaries for financially needy and academically deserving students. However, until 2020, exceptional academic achievement has never been recognised specifically. In 2020, the Law Faculty Trust first introduced a prize (amounting to R200 000, which approximately covers the tuition cost of a legal qualification) awarded to an academic top achiever.*

Following the 2024 academic year, we can now announce the fifth recipient of this award: Chris Malherbe, a BAccLLB (cum laude) graduate. He works as an Associate at Bain & Company in Johannesburg and serves as an International Editor of the Cambridge Law Review. Congratulations, Chris!

* [All LLB programmes, i.e. LLB (four years), LLB (three years), LLB (two years) and BAccLLB, qualify. Students are considered for the prize when all the requirements for graduation are met, and all compulsory law subjects (weighted average), as set out in the last two years of the LLB (four years) programme, are taken into account (with the exception of Law of Civil Procedure as it falls in the final year of the BCom and BA (Law) programmes). Furthermore, the programme must be completed in the minimum period.]

*Die alumni van die Fakulteit befonds jaarliks verskeie beurse vir finansiële behoeftige en akademiese waardige studente. Alhoewel, tot 2020 is uitsonderlike akademiese prestasie nooit spesifiek erken nie. In 2020 het die Regsfakulteitstrust vir die eerste keer 'n prys (ten bedrae van R200 000, wat ongeveer die onderrigkoste van 'n regskwalifikasie dek) bekendgestel wat aan 'n akademiese toppresterder gegee word.**

Na die 2023 akademiese jaar kan ons nou die vyfde ontvanger van hierdie toekenning aankondig: Chris Malherbe, 'n BRekLLB (cum laude) graduand. Hy werk as 'n vennoot by Bain & Company in Johannesburg en dien as 'n internasionale redakteur van die Cambridge Law Review. Baie geluk, Chris!

\ [Alle LLB-programme, dit wil sê LLB (vier jaar), LLB (drie jaar), LLB (twee jaar) en BRekLLB, kwalifiseer. Studente word vir die prys oorweeg wanneer hulle aan al die vereistes vir graduering voldoen en alle verpligte regsvalke (met geweeegde gemiddelde), soos uiteengesit* in die laaste twee jaar van die LLB (vier jaar)-program, word in ag geneem (met die uitsondering van Siviele Prosesreg omdat dit in die finale jaar van die BCom en BA (Regte)-programme plaasvind). Verder moet die program in die minimum tydperk voltooi word.]

We sent Chris some questions, compiled by current law students, to hear more about his experience at the Faculty:

1. As jy 'n alternatiewe studierigting en loopbaan moes kies, wat sou dit wees?

Ekonomie. My ideale werk is om 'n skrywer vir die Economist te wees.

2. When you think of the Stellenbosch Law Faculty, what image or idea comes most strongly to mind?

I picture a blend of classic character and progressivism. Stellenbosch has always felt like home to me, but the Faculty introduced me to so many new ideas.

3. Waar is jou gunsteling plek om te studeer?

By die huis. Ek het op 'n wynplaas in Stellenbosch grootgeword. Ek het 'n plekkie op die boonste verdieping van 'n toring in 'n wynkelder gehad met panoramiese uitsigte oor die wingerde. Ek het gereeld daar gestudeer, veral tydens Covid - die natuurskoon was ongelooflik.

4. Why did you choose to study law, and why at the Stellenbosch Law Faculty?

I chose law because it's about so much more than just the letter of the law. It taught me how to think more clearly, how to make cohesive arguments, and how to be comfortable with ambiguity. Ultimately, I'm not using the law directly in my life, but indirectly, it makes all the difference.

5. Wat is 'n kosbare herinnering van jou studentejare?

Die avonture in die berge saam met my vriende.

6. What was your most enjoyable module and why?

Interpretation of Enacted Law. This surprised me, since initially I was quite sceptical about the module. I felt like I gained many fundamental, systematic ways of thinking about issues. Despite not working in law, it still influences my thinking to this day.

7. Wie was jou gunsteling dosent, en hoekom?

Dis moeilik om net een te kies. Professore Sandra Liebenberg, Richard Stevens en Christoph Garbers was werklik ongelooflik - nie net ten opsigte van hul kennis nie, maar ook as gevolg van hul belangstelling in my ontwikkeling.

8. What advice would you give a fellow law student who is struggling to manage the workload? And what is your approach to large volumes of work?

Focus on the core ideas and principles and condense the content without losing its essence. My memory is fairly average, so pure memorisation was rarely my approach. Law school isn't about memorising everything. It's more about finding the truly important substance and knowing how to apply it properly. Also, going into gloomy spirals of despair about the workload won't make it go away - it's best to be as pragmatic and optimistic as possible.

9. Luister jy na musiek wanneer jy studeer? Indien wel, wie is jou gunsteling kunstenaar/groep of gunsteling genre?

Ek luister altyd na musiek wanneer ek analitiese werk doen of opsommings maak. Ludwig Göransson is al jare lank bo-aan my lys op Spotify. Anders luister ek obskure Duitse rap.

10. Do you believe it is important to have a studying/social life balance?

Absolutely. I worked extremely hard throughout university (sometimes notoriously so), but I always made time to spend time with my friends and family. I also had a few personal non-negotiables: never work past 8 PM, exercise at least three or four times a week, eat healthily, and the like. These will naturally differ from person to person, but I felt like having clear boundaries made the mental aspect of things much more manageable.

11. Wat is jou belangstellings buite die reg en is dit belangrik om sulke belangstellings te hê?

Openbare beleid, skaak, UFC, en reis (veral na minder gewilde lande). Baie min mense hou genoeg van hul studies of loopbaan dat dit hul enigste bron van stimulasie is, en ek is geen uitsondering nie.

12. What are your plans for the future?

I'm currently working for Bain & Company and will transfer to either their Copenhagen or Sydney offices in the next few months. I try not to plan too far ahead, but I wouldn't be surprised if I pursue an LLM in the US (Harvard has always been a dream) and eventually return to South Africa to work in public policy. A certainty, though, is that all roads lead back home.

13. Wat is die waardevolste vaardigheid/eienskap/kennis wat jy uit jou regstudies opgedoen het?

Die belangrikste was om 'n sterk werksetiek te ontwikkel. BRekLLB se werkklas is baie inspannend, dus dink ek werklik dat dit een van die belangrikste eienskappe is wat 'n persoon kan ontwikkel.

14. What advice do you wish you had been given as a first-year student?

Not to let one bad result ruin your day. My very first law test - Criminal Law - went quite badly, and I was immediately questioned whether law was for me. It turned out that the mental turmoil after that test, and many others, was unnecessary. Don't let slips change your perception too much.

15. Waar is die beste koffieplek op kampus?

Häzz was die beste, en ek is steeds hartseer dat hulle toegemaak het.

16. What is your favourite Social Media App to use as a break from studying?

I avoid most forms of social media, since I think these typically take far more than they give. But if I had to pick one, it's probably Strava.

17. Wat is erger, klas om 08:00 of 16:00?

Klas om 16:00 is beslis erger. Om die tamheid in die middag te oorkom, het ek gewoonlik in hierdie gleuf gaan draf wanneer ek nie klas gehad het nie.

18. Do you have a particular method for studying and note-taking?

I made "executive summaries" of everything - cryptic, concise, and hyper-personalised notes. It allowed me to work through the content far quicker, leaving more time for deeper thinking about more complex parts of the work.

Moot Court

Stellenbosch University was represented at the 34th Christof Heyns African Human Rights Moot Court Competition, which took place from 29 June to 5 July 2025 at the University of Cape Town. The University's team comprised Ms Isabelle Scribante and Ms Carolyn Laker, who were coached by Dr Anisa Mahmoudi.

This year's competition featured a complex hypothetical case before the African Court on Human and Peoples' Rights between the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights (representing the Association for Zambezi Migrants) and the fictional state of Baharia. The case engaged with pressing human rights issues including nationality rights, statelessness, electoral rights, migrants' rights, and state obligations toward non-citizens.

The Christof Heyns African Human Rights Moot Court Competition, named after the late renowned human rights scholar and UN Special Rapporteur, continues to be Africa's premier platform for aspiring human rights lawyers to hone their advocacy skills on contemporary human rights challenges facing the continent.

The team reached the quarter-finals. They placed 8th overall in the Preliminary Rounds, and Ms Laker was ranked 7th in the Best English Oralist category.

Congratulations to the team.

Student Court

In March, the Student Court hosted its annual Constitutional Compliance Workshop. This event aimed to equip student leaders with knowledge about their constitutions, elections, and student governance. Various student leaders across residence, faculty, and society structures attended. This workshop featured presentations from Professor Nicola Smit, Ms Lerato Melato, Mr Jonathan-Dale Blanckenberg, Chief Justice Risuna Risimati, and Justice Carolyn Laker.

Adams and Adams Luncheon

On 13 February, Adams & Adams visited the Faculty to engage with the first-year law students, offering an inside look into life at the firm, their application process, and what it takes to become a candidate attorney. The seminar provided students with invaluable insights from seasoned professionals, helping them better understand what law firms expect from aspiring candidate attorneys. The session was interactive, with Adams & Adams generously answering a range of thoughtful questions, leaving students with a clearer vision for their legal careers.

Khayaalethu Collab

The JV/S Transformation Officer, Miss Joy Hlatshwayo, had the privilege of collaborating with Khayaalethu, a newly established residence, to tackle food insecurity in Stellenbosch. Their Social Impact Officer and Miss Hlatshwayo worked together to donate surplus food from their orientation programme. They delivered over 100 food packs (including fruit, wraps, and bread) to the Stellenbosch Night Shelter, supporting those in need.

One can buy a Night Shelter Ticket at the following places: Paul Roos Spar; Pick 'n Pay Express; Neelsie Spar; PostNet (Plein Street); Die Blom Huis (Eikestad Mall). (The cost is R10 per ticket.)

Public Protector visit

On 20 February 2025, the Centre for Social Justice (CSJ), collaborating with the JV/S, hosted the Public Protector of South Africa's team. This event furthered the CSJ's Everyday Law & Justice initiative.

The Public Protector's Office, a vital Chapter 9 institution, investigates maladministration and ensures accountability. During their campus visit, they engaged with students directly at their interactive stall. They offered advice on legal and administrative challenges, including strike-related concerns, and detailed the support available for unfair treatment by public institutions. Students also learned about internship opportunities within the office, encouraging practical experience in upholding justice and governance. This engagement underscores the Public Protector's commitment to transparency and accessibility for future legal minds.

Law week

Law Week at the Faculty was a vibrant success, featuring a diverse array of events from legal insights to lively celebrations and community outreach.

On Monday, 3 March, Law Week kicked off with Moot Monday, a dynamic event hosted by the Stellenbosch University Moot Society and the JV/S. A panel discussion featuring legal experts, including Professor du Plessis and Advocate Jade Aspeling, offered invaluable insights into courtroom etiquette and legal drafting. The session, supported by Adams & Adams Attorneys, culminated in an exceptional mock moot, providing students with a practical understanding of proceedings and boosting their confidence.

Toga Party

The annual Toga Party, which is a highlight of the social calendar, took place on Tuesday, 4 March 2025. Renowned artists like TIMO ODV, Aidin Caye, and Mr Morris, electrified the evening, as attendees in all-white attire and togas mingled, enjoying the sunset, food, and drinks. Sponsored by Unilever, who generously provided a variety of toiletry products for attendees, the event was a joyful celebration of community, with the dance floor alive with energy.

On Wednesday, 5 March, the Transformation Officer, with the support of the JV/S, visited Kayamandi Primary School. They delivered much-needed stationery and school shoes, addressing the challenges faced by learners due to limited financial resources and other factors impacting school attendance. This initiative aimed to foster ongoing partnerships to support the children's educational journey.

The JV/S hosted its highly anticipated annual Stellenbosch Law Quiz evening at the Courtyard Café on Thursday, 6 March 2025. This challenging eight-section quiz tested participants on general knowledge, pop culture, history, and law. With exciting prizes and collaborations from Old School and Unilever, it was a lively evening of friendly competition, allowing students to showcase their knowledge.

Law Week concluded on Friday, 7 March 2025, with an elegant Postgraduate Cocktail evening, hosted by the JV/S. LLB, LLM, and LLD candidates, alongside Faculty staff, gathered in their finest cocktail attire. In collaboration with Aperol Spritz and Fitch & Leedes, the evening offered a sophisticated setting for mingling, dancing, and enjoying delicious food and drinks, providing a perfect end to a memorable week.

Career Fair

On 13 March, the Law Faculty hosted a memorable Career Fair that brought together ambition, opportunity, and diverse perspectives. With the participation of over 25 esteemed law firms, the event offered the students invaluable insights into various career trajectories within the legal profession. Representatives from these firms engaged one-on-one with the budding legal minds, sharing expertise and guidance to help them shape their professional journeys. Adding a unique dimension to this year's fair, several NGOs also joined the event. Their presence highlighted the impact of alternative career paths in law, allowing for differing avenues for students to contribute meaningfully to society through advocacy, policy work, and public service. The Career Fair is not just an event - it is a vibrant celebration of potential, collaboration, and innovation. Students left feeling motivated and better equipped to make informed decisions about their futures.

The role of the Public Protector's Office

On 19 March, the Transformation Officer participated in a radio interview with MatiesFM (MFM 92.6) to discuss the role of the Public Protector's Office in assisting NSFAS students within the Faculty of Law. The JV/S remains committed to ensuring that all lodged complaints are processed efficiently and that students receive timely and adequate responses.

Beyond the Books

The Beyond the Books series kicked off with an engaging session on Class Action Lawsuits on 27 February 2025, which offered students a deeper look into how collective legal action operates within the South African legal system. The discussion was led by an attorney from the Law Clinic, Mr Odwa Nweba, who shared real-world experiences and landmark cases that highlighted the power and impact of class actions in achieving justice for marginalised communities. Key topics included the procedural challenges of launching a class action, the importance of access to justice, and how these lawsuits can drive social change. Attendees left with a clearer understanding of how class actions work beyond the theoretical framework, and how they serve as crucial tools for public interest litigation.

Visit by senior law students from Utrecht University

On 17 April 2025, senior law students from Utrecht University visited the Faculty as a part of a Global Legal Experience trip to South Africa. After a lecture on the history and context of the South African legal system, presented by Professor Juanita Pienaar, Dr Bradley Greenhalgh showed the students around the Faculty, CL Marais, and Law Clinic.

ProBono.org Awards Ceremony

On 20 February 2025, the Law Clinic had the privilege of attending the ProBono.org Awards Ceremony at Norton Rose Fulbright, where Candidate Legal Practitioner, Brandon Taylor, won the Outstanding Student Contribution Award, recognising his dedication to access to justice and his impactful work at the SU Law Clinic during his time as student consultant during his final year of studies in 2024. Through his hard work, compassion, and dedication to justice, Brandon has made a meaningful impact on both clients and colleagues alike.

The evening was a celebration of legal professionals and students who go above and beyond to serve their communities. The keynote speaker was Advocate Jason Brickhill, who spoke powerfully about the role of lawyers in advancing justice and human rights. His words were a reminder of the importance of this work - namely, why access to justice matters and why pro bono efforts remain a cornerstone of a fair and democratic society.

The Law Clinic is immensely proud of Brandon and looks forward to seeing his continued success in the legal field.

Successful Relocation of Nooitgedacht Farm Occupiers

In June 2024, the Clinic was approached by representatives of 15 households living on Nooitgedacht Farm, in Stellenbosch, to assist with negotiations regarding their potential relocation from the farm. The farm owner offered to purchase each household a property in a housing development in Klipmuts.

After months of dedicated engagement with the occupiers and the farm owner's attorneys, 13 households signed relocation settlement agreements in September 2024, with the final two households following in January and February 2025.

The Law Clinic is pleased to share that, on 18 and 19 February, all their clients successfully moved into their new homes in Klipmuts. Their properties are now in the process of being registered in their names, ensuring security of tenure for generations to come. As part of its ongoing support, the Clinic will also assist these new homeowners with drafting their wills.

Welcome to New Team Members

The Law Clinic is excited to announce that Amber Mignon Jamo Matheus, Brandon Taylor, and Chloe Neelse have joined the team at Stellenbosch University Law Clinic as candidate legal practitioners with effect from 1 February 2025. The Law Clinic looks forward to their contributions as they embark on this crucial phase of their legal careers.

Additionally, the Law Clinic is pleased to welcome Demi Johannisen as the new Attorney heading up the Family Law Department. Demi obtained her LLB degree from the University of the Western Cape in 2016 and completed her articles at the UWC Law Clinic in 2019. She was admitted as an Attorney of the High Court in September 2019.

With her extensive experience in family law matters, Demi assists clients with divorce proceedings, maintenance applications, children's court matters, and wills. She also plays a vital role in mentoring and supervising final-year law students and candidate legal practitioners within her department.

Empowering Young Voices: SULC's Children's Rights Project

B Taylor at Vlotenburg Primary School

In the first term of 2025, the Law Clinic visited nine primary schools in and around Stellenbosch as part of its ongoing Children's Rights Project. Through this initiative, the trained Candidate Legal Practitioners (CLPs) presented engaging, age-appropriate sessions to learners aged six to nine, educating them about their rights and responsibilities in a fun and interactive way.

Over the course of the term, the project reached a total of 817 Grade 1 to 3 learners. The impact of the sessions was clearly reflected in the data:

- There was an estimated 47% increase in the number of learners who could identify what a "right" is.
- There was a 47% improvement in understanding what a "responsibility" is.
- Most notably, there was a 62% increase in learners who knew whom to approach when feeling scared or unsafe.

The CLPs strive to deliver informative and empowering sessions while keeping young learners focused and involved and the feedback from schools has been overwhelmingly positive. Educators consistently highlight how well the sessions align with their curriculum and how much the learners enjoy the CLPs' engaging, relatable approach. Teachers noted that learners were enthusiastic participants and expressed a keen interest in having the Law Clinic return in the future.

The Clinic is proud of the work being done through the Children's Rights Project and look forward to reaching even more young voices in the terms ahead.

Memorial Herdenking

John Newdigate (LLB 1981)

Op 31 Januarie 2025 het John Newdigate SC die stryd teen kanker verloor. Die Kaapse Balie het 'n geliefde en gewaardeerde lid verloor. Hy word onthou vir sy skerp intellek, wye regs kennis, deeglike hantering van sy regspraktyk, hoflike en vriendelike optrede teenoor kollegas en diegene met wie hy konsulteer het, besonder bekwame kruisondervraging en sy belangstelling in die wel en weë van diegene rondom hom.

Hy het in Desember 1985 by die Kaapse Balie aangesluit en is in November 2000 as senior advokaat aangestel.

Hierdie huldeblyk is saamgestel uit kommentare deur die senior lid van die stel kamers waaruit hy in Keeromstraat gepraktiseer het, 'n senior prokureur wat hom dikwels opdrag gegee het, die sekretariaat van die Kaapse Balie, gesprekke met persone wat hom geken het en die herinneringe van 'n lang en ingewikkelde saak waarin hy die skrywer hiervan oor 'n periode van meer as twee jaar gelei het.

Die Regsfakulteit van die Universiteit Stellenbosch vereer 'n gedenkwaardige alumnus.

Awiwe Liwani LLB 2024

The Faculty is profoundly saddened by the passing of Mr Awiwe Liwani, a dedicated student and alumnus of our institution. Mr Liwani was renowned for his humble demeanour and unwavering respect for others.

Mr Liwani completed his LLB in December 2024 and was scheduled to graduate in March 2025. Regrettably, his mother had to accept his degree on his behalf at the March graduation ceremony. With heavy hearts, the Faculty mourns the loss of his promising future. As Cicero observed, "The life given us, by nature is short; but the memory of a well-spent life is eternal."
